Providence Center, a non-profit organization that serves adults with developmental disabilities, announced today a Happy Hour Art Show at i2 – Innovation Intelligence on Thursday, June 7, 2012 from 5:00 PM – 8:00 PM. The show will feature art created by Providence Center participants enrolled in its Art Institute program. A raffle and sale of Providence Center products will also be a part of the event.

i2 – Innovation Intelligence Founder and President Jeffrey Wells “i2-Innovation Intelligence is pleased to be hosting the Happy Hour Art Show fundraiser for Providence Center. We are proud to support this worthwhile organization and the amazingly creative individuals served by their programs. Please join us in raising awareness and resources in support of their art program.”

i2 – Innovation Intelligence is a private, emerging market innovation consultancy with locations in North and South America, Africa, Asia and the Near East. It provides services that enable organizations, international companies, and governments to accelerate sustainable businesses through innovation, while managing strategic risks. It believes that companies can be financially successful, environmentally sensitive and socially responsible.

Bart O'Reilly, Manager of Providence Center's Art Institute, added, “It is always great to expose the works our participants are creating to a wider audience. There is some exceptional talent in those we serve. We are grateful to i2 – Innovation Intelligence for hosting this event and helping us build upon the tremendous support our organization has throughout the community.”

Sponsors of the event include: Naptown Nannies, i2-Innovation Intelligence, Vin 909, Ramshead Roadhouse, Fordham/Old Dominion Brewers, Chesapeake Arts Center.

I2 – Innovation Intelligence is located at 222 Severn Avenue, Building 10, Suite 9, Annapolis, Maryland 21403. For information on sponsorships or to attend, please contact Audra Harrison at aharrison@providencecenter.com or Kaeti Bradley at kaetibradley@gmail.com.
